In default of bonds he was sent to the county jail to keep company with his depraved son, Johnny, who was also held to answer before the grand jury for threatening to kill policeman Henry Wilmer. Several witnesses testified to having frequently heard Money say he would fix Wilmer the first chance he got with two pistols which he had because Wilmer had had the children. The charge of the judge and the jury was $1000. Money made $100 of it.

At the council meeting last night, under the head of "reports of committees," Gallagher arose and stated that he thought the committee on elections ought to make a report in regard to the appointment of judges for the election for the coming year. He said he had met with the other two members of that committee yesterday to consult and make these appointments; also the plans for holding the election. He did not know what had been determined upon by the committee. The members did not meet him fairly, he thought, in the matter. He had presented names of well-known and responsible men for judges in the First ward, and also clerks. He was entirely overlooked, and ignored. None of his suggestions were acted upon. He found a majority of the committee against him and had finally retired. In self-respect he could not do otherwise. He said he had offered the following names: Judges, J. O'Neil, Frank Holmboe and B. Nordstrom; clerks, John McCracken, Jr. and Geo. L. Curry. As the committee on elections had rejected these names, or rather had concluded not to appoint them, he begged the council to consider them in open court, for ratification.

"I am not," said he, "that it is nothing more than a matter of public opinion. It is a question of a chance to suggest and a right to some vote and representation in this matter. I have offered as judges are all good citizens well known in this community. There are two Republicans and one Democrat. It appears to me that that is quite a right and no one with good sense on the subject of fair dealing and courtesy ought to object to this names."

He warmly seconded and advocated the position assumed by his colleague from the First ward.

Schuyler objected to the presentation of the names and to Mr. Gallagher's motion that the council affirm the same. He thought the motion out of order. The committee on elections, he said, had already rejected the names, and he thought it was the duty of the council to stand by the action of the majority of that committee.

Forbes also stated substantively the same thing. He said that a majority of the committee on elections, he said, had already rejected the names, and he thought it was the duty of the council to stand by the action of the majority of that committee.

When the order of business had reached resolutions, the following was presented:
